ARIZONA'S EXHIBIT

At the St. Louis World's Fair may be Taken to Portland for the Lewis and Clark Centennial Next Year.

Special Commissioner J. P. Marshall of the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition to be held at Portland, Oregon, next year, was a Flagstaff visitor Wednesday, leaving on No. 7 for other points in northern Arizona.

Mr. Marshall is working to the end that Arizona and her resources be represented by an exhibit at the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition. He has visited Gov. Brodie and other prominent officials and citizens of the territory, and in our interview stated:

"Quite a number of prominent citizens whom I have called upon have assured me that the people of Arizona look upon an exhibit at the Portland fair as of especial importance, and that every effort will be made at the coming legislature towards securing a liberal appropriation.

"Arizona has a very fine mineral, fruit and cereal exhibit now at St. Louis, which, upon the closing of that exposition, could be moved to Portland, as easily as returned home, and be in the good company of the foreign, United States government, eastern and western exhibits which would be shipped there immediately upon the closing of the St. Louis exposition. In the meantime the legislature could take up the matter of replenishing and increasing it.

"The United States government has appropriated $475,000 for the purpose of erecting suitable buildings at Portland in which to place the magnificent $300,000 exhibit it now has at St. Louis. The state of Oregon has appropriated $450,000 for the state exhibit. The citizens of Portland have subscribed and paid into the treasury $420,000. New York, Massachusetts, Montana, Idaho, Utah and many other eastern and western states have made large appropriations for the purpose of moving and establishing their present exhibits in Portland.

"The United States government and several large general buildings such as the agricultural, liberal arts and foreign are now under construction, and will be completed in the fall.

"The people of Arizona should give the exposition the heartiest support because exposition advertising is the best in the world. Thousands of people from all over the west and east will be there and an attractive Arizona exhibit would bring many investors to this section."

The Lesson of Liao Yang.

The facts concerning the battle of Liao Yang, as we now have them, tend to vindicate the theory entertained by present day tacticians that with modern weapons the defense has an immense advantage—one soldier in the trenches being as good as three in attack. This theory, seemingly shown faulty in other engagements of the war is apparently re-established. It appears that if Kuropatkin had not been threatened by an enveloping movement which endangered his communications he would have beaten off the Japanese on his front. The Russians, although defeated, are thus able to find solace.

But while Russia may feel pride in the kind of resistance her soldiers were able to make, sober thought will show her that the lesson to be drawn from Liao Yang is against her. It is likely that the period of Japanese offense draws to a close. Japan has now the line across Manchuria she set out to secure. We may safely assume that if the war goes on next year the Japanese will be in the trenches and behind barbed wire. Either Russia must attack or consent that southern Manchuria shall remain in Japanese hands. The query naturally arises, in view of Japanese difficulty in driving back the Russians, of how great will be Russian difficulty in driving back the Japanese? Will not the task be beyond the strength of any army which Russia will be able to create and maintain at the end of 5,000 miles of single track railroad? In proportion as Russia advertises the magnitude of the recent Japanese losses she likewise advertises how great will be her own losses if she ever takes the offensive.—Journal.

MR. MORRISON SAYS NO.

He Would Not Accept the Nomination for Delegate.

Under date of September 14th, the Arizona Republican says:—

Hon. Robert Morrison authorizes The Republican to announce that he will not be a candidate for delegate in congress. He makes this announcement in view of the widespread discussion of the matter and the feeling generally manifested in the territory recently that he would be the strongest man the republicans could nominate.

"I wish it distinctly understood," he said this afternoon, "that I am not a candidate and I can conceive of no circumstance which would induce me to accept the nomination."

Mr. Morrison's business interests have become so extensive that his intimate friends have expected that he would decline to make the race this year. The feeling seems to be generally prevalent in Yavapia county that Governor Brodie ought to be permitted to name the republican candidate for congress.

Henry Ashurst of Williams, was in the city Tuesday.
